Overview

This course will provide you with a broader perspective of the organisational issues facing HR professionals and develop effective analytical and problem solving skills.

It will help you develop skills in HR management, providing an awareness of HR functions and the key issues that impact on Human Resource and provide a platform for studies in Human Resource Management

What you'll learn

You will undertake the following modules:

- Developing Professional Practice

- Using information in Human Resources
- Contemporary developments in HR Development
- Business Issues and the Contexts of Human Resources
- Resourcing and talent planning
- Reward Management
- Managing and Coordinating the HR Function
- Employee Engagement

This qualification is undergraduate level and is intended for people who seek to develop a career in HR management or who are working in the field of HR management and need to extend their knowledge and skills.

Assessments / Exams

A range of assessment methods will be used such as assignments, group work, timed assessments, role play, assignments and case studies. In many of the assessments you will be required to use your own workplace as a case study.

Entry requirements

You may have achieved the Level 3 qualification and be working towards a management role in HR. Alternatively, you may have a first degree, be an Associate Member of the CIPD and have had several years of experience in HR.

You will be asked to attend an interview and show proof of your qualifications, CIPD membership. A reference will be requested from your employer

What this course leads to

The Diploma in HR Management Level 5 will provide a stepping stone for the CIPD post-graduate diploma but you may not feel they are ready for post-graduate study.
